Wesleyan Baseball has the fortune of playing on the oldest baseball field still in use today. Since 1874, the Cardinals have played on Andrus Field, which is tucked into the middle of campus, symbolizing its importance in the school community. The central location helps the Cardinals routinely draw more fans per game than every other team in the Northeast.

- Home of Wesleyan Baseball since 1874
- Batting Cage/Double Bullpen Mounds
- Windscreen Outfield Fence

“You will be playing on a field that has seen, among others, two National Football League coaches, Major League Baseball players, Gold Medal-winning Olympic athletes and two Presidents of the United States.”

The Wesleyan Baseball Experience

TRADITION. EXCITEMENT. TEAMWORK.

WORK ETHIC. SUCCESS. WINNING.

The Wesleyan University baseball program combines these elements with an elite academic education, forging an exciting, high-level baseball experience.

Featuring a comprehensive baseball learning environment and exceptional facilities, Wesleyan allows team members to reach their full potential while participating on an historically successful team.

—TRADITION—

Beginning with its first baseball game in 1865 against Yale, Wesleyan baseball has created a tradition of excellence on the field and off. In a fierce rivalry for the coveted Little Three title with Amherst and Williams, Wesleyan has won eight of the last 16 titles, and most recently, placed third in the NESCAC conference in 2005 and fourth in 2009 and 2010. In addition, the Cardinals have had numerous All-NESCAC, All-New England and All-America recipients over the years, including Craig Brewer ’95 who set a national record for consecutive pitching victories with 21. More recently, Bill Robinson ’03 set eight school offensive records, Jeff Maier ’06 set the school record for career hits, and Drew Dominguez ’09 set the record for hits in a season twice. Dominguez played three years in the Boston Red Sox organization after graduation, while Mike Barsotti ’12 is currently playing professional independent baseball.

SPRING TRIP

The Cardinals’ spring trip is truly unique and one-of-a-kind in college baseball. A two-week trip to Arizona features 15 games against opponents from around the country, while creating a team chemistry that resonates for the rest of the player’s lives.

SUCCESS

The Cardinals have had numerous All-NESCAC, All-New England and All-America recipients over the years, including Craig Brewer ’95 who set a national record for consecutive pitching victories with 21. More recently, Bill Robinson ’03 set eight school offensive records, Jeff Maier ’06 set the school record for career hits, and Drew Dominguez ’09 set the record for hits in a season twice. Dominguez played three years in the Boston Red Sox organization after graduation, while Mike Barsotti ’12 is currently playing professional independent baseball.

PRACTICE

Wesleyan’s practices are centered around live on-field hitting and fielding, and are spread out to eliminate academic conflicts. Through this, a focus is placed on the players learning responsibility, resulting in improvement throughout the season and the ability to play relaxed, confident baseball at a highly focused level.

—ANDRUS FIELD—

Wesleyan baseball plays its home games on the oldest baseball field in the world still in use, dating back to at least 1864. Its natural amphitheater setting amidst Olin Library and Foss Hill fosters a popular place for students, parents and fans to watch games. With outdoor and indoor batting cages, as well as a full-size field house for practices and scrimmages, the team is able to work on its skills independent of weather.

—NESCAC—

Once back east following spring break, Wesleyan contends for both the traditional Little Three title, as well as the NESCAC title, which gives the winner an automatic bid to the NCAA Division III tournament.

—EXPERIENCE—

The Wesleyan baseball experience is combined with studying alongside the best minds of today’s generation from professors to students to alumni. With its elite academic reputation and its beautiful campus and facilities on top of the hill overlooking the Connecticut River, Wesleyan baseball players are privy to an extraordinary, multifaceted experience.

LEARNING BASEBALL AT WESLEYAN

Wesleyan baseball players have experienced extraordinary improvement in their baseball skills because of a positive learning environment.

There are numerous essential elements that go into playing baseball well, including: technique, rhythm/subconscious, batting, adjusting/creativity, anticipating, fear/trust/confidence, resting/waiting, running/diving, heart, and enjoyment.

The Wesleyan baseball coaching staff teach the concept of awareness as the master skill in order to perform well in all these elements. Awareness is defined as paying attention to what is happening in the present moment. When a player is truly aware in the moment, then he plays without doubt or fear and lets his body do what it’s trained to do. In order to incorporate awareness into their games, the emphasis is on the players’ learning to focus, to feel what their bodies are doing, to create a plan, and to work hard. With these four pillars – Focus, Feel, Plan, and Hard Work – players can bring their success in practice into the game.

These are all taught by innovative drills, slow-motion video analysis, experimentation, and self-coaching. The result is players learn the mark of greatness – making minute adjustments at high-speed in the heat of competition. In turn, they are able to have consistent success, therefore trusting themselves, and therefore always playing with confidence.
Mark Woodworth, a 1994 graduate of Wesleyan University, enters his 14th season as Wesleyan’s head baseball coach and member of the faculty. He is part of a unique tradition as he is only the third coach at the school in the last 75 years. An adjunct assistant professor of physical education, he has led Wesleyan baseball to the NESCAC final four tournament six times, including four of the last six seasons.

In 2014, he was named the NESCAC Coach of the Year for the second consecutive season as Wesleyan won the NESCAC championship, reached the NCAA regional final, and won their second-straight Little Three title. The Cardinals set a school record for victories with 31, recorded the second-best ERA in school history, and had the all-time best fielding percentage.

Woodworth brings a wealth of experience accrued over 30 years of baseball coaching, including 21 at the college level. Before his stint as head coach at Wesleyan, he served as an assistant coach at Amherst College, as well as the head baseball coach at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston. From 1996-97, he was an assistant coach at Wesleyan, while earning his Master of Arts in Liberal Studies degree.

In 1995, he coached four future major leaguers as an assistant for the Falmouth Commodores in the Cape Cod League, and he also was a player in the league for the Wareham Gatemen in 1993. He has helped run the annual tryout for the Cape League for the last 19 years, and has placed eight Wesleyan players in the Cape.

At Wesleyan, Woodworth also teaches and serves as the director of intramurals, as well as assists the soccer and football teams in various capacities. He also is the New England coordinator for the Div. III national coaches poll.

As a player at Wesleyan, Woodworth was a four-year starter at shortstop, graduating as the all-time Wesleyan leader in games played, and sixth in career hits. He was captain of the 1994 Wesleyan team which broke school records en route to winning the NCAA New England title, before playing in the NCAA Division III World Series. The Cardinals finished their run with a berth in the national championship game, finishing runner-up, while posting a previously best-ever 30-8 record. In November 2009, the 1994 team was inducted into the Wesleyan Athletics Hall of Fame.

Woodworth is a native of Norwell, Mass. and a 1990 graduate of Norwell High School. He was a three-sport captain, earning All-South Shore League honors in baseball, soccer and basketball, and was named the South Shore League Small Athlete of the Year in 1990 by WATD-FM. He also participated in numerous summer baseball leagues including American Legion, the Cranberry League, and the Boston Park League.

Woodworth’s purpose as a coach is to teach the lifetime skills of focus and being in the moment through the medium of baseball. This is why baseball is of great value. An emphasis is placed on enjoying the game, learning to improve technique, creating and implementing a plan, and working hard with inspiring teammates. The result for players who love the game is playing relaxed, confident and aggressive baseball while competing under pressure.

As a supplement to his baseball teachings, Woodworth has written a book, The Rhythm of Baseball, about the technique and mental approach of baseball, as well as The Code of the Game, about learning baseball by feel.

He is married to the former Robin McLellan, a 1997 graduate of Wesleyan University. They have an eight-year-old daughter, Lily Grace Woodworth, and a six-year-old son, Dylan Samuel Stiles Woodworth.
2014 Wesleyan Baseball Coaches

Bob Wojick • Assistant Coach
Bob Wojick spent his second season as an instrumental member of the Wesleyan coaching staff. Prior to joining the Cardinals, he served 36 years as an assistant coach at Eastern Connecticut State University. His experience at all facets of the game was a prime reason his teams won the Div. III National Championship four times, appeared in the College World Series 12 times, and played in a regional over 30 times.

In 2005, he was named the National Assistant Coach-of-the-Year by the American Baseball Coaches Association and Baseball America magazine. He is the only non-Division I coach to receive the award. In 2009, he was also named the New England Assistant Coach-of-the-Year by the New England Intercollegiate Baseball Association.

A three-year letterwinner as an outfielder at Eastern Conn., he joined the coaching staff in 1972. He took five years off to spend more time with his family, before returning in 1995. He was inducted into the Eastern Hall-of-Fame in 1992.

A 1971 graduate of Eastern Conn. St. with a B.A. in Applied Social Relations, he also received his M.A. in Industrial Education from Central Connecticut State University. He retired after 35 years teaching in the Hartford Public Schools system.

He and his wife Sandy have two grown children, Kimberlee and Brian.

Tom Yankus • Assistant Coach
Tom returned to the Wesleyan baseball coaching staff for his fourth season after an amazing 52 years coaching baseball at Choate Rosemary Hall, one of the very best private high schools in the country.

An alum of Choate, Tom then attended Williams College, graduating in 1956 as President of his class. He has since been named to the Williams College All-Time Baseball Team. After graduation, he played professional baseball in the New York Yankees system in leagues from Montana to Washington to North Carolina. He also pitched in the prestigious Cape Cod League, and served as manager of the Orleans Cardinals for nine seasons, coaching Todd Helton, Nomar Garciaparra and Frank Thomas among others. The Orleans Cardinals’ annual Thomas Yankus Pitching Award is named after him.

An English teacher at Choate, he was inducted into the Choate Athletics Hall of Fame in 1996. He is married to Julie Oxborough and they have two daughters, Annie and Alex.

Chris Wojick • Assistant Coach
Chris Wojick returned for his third season as the pitching coach for the Wesleyan Cardinals. In 2014 and 2013, his pitcher’s overall ERA was the second and third-lowest in school history. A 2011 graduate of Eastern Connecticut State University, Chris brings a wealth of experience in baseball, including a standout four-year career pitching for the Warriors. Chris finished his career second in all-time appearances with 74 and was named ABCA third-team all-New England in 2008. He had 13 career wins, eight saves in 135.0 innings with 136 strikeouts and a career 4.13 ERA. He served as the Tournament Director for the NCAA Division III New England Regional in May of 2012, and in the summer of 2014, he coached the Mystic Schooners in the NECBL.

Chris graduated from Montville (Conn.) High School, and was named to the prestigious All-State team while leading his team to the state title in 2006. He was both a pitcher and catcher for the University of Maine his first-year in college.

Garrett Lamborn • Assistant Coach
Garrett returned for his fifth year of coaching at Wesleyan, after graduating from Wesleyan in 2009, and serving as a Head Captain of the Cardinal baseball team. He had an incredibly successful four-year career, hitting 359 with five home runs his senior year, after hitting .380 in his junior year. The outfielder also brought great leadership skills to the team, culminating in being honored with the Norm Daniels Award for Loyalty and Dedication to Wesleyan Baseball. After Wesleyan, Garrett played professional baseball for the Bussells Kangaroos in Holland, in the Peach State independent league, as well as four seasons for the Adelaide Baseball Club in the Australian Baseball League.

A 2005 graduate of McDonough School in Maryland, Garrett was an economics major at Wesleyan.
Rich Adelstein • Faculty Advisor
Rich Adelstein entered his 13th season as a co-Faculty Advisor to the Wesleyan baseball team. He is an invaluable member of the staff, serving as a liaison in the quest to align athletic programs with academic and student life. Prof. Adelstein has been a Professor of Economics at Wesleyan since 1975 and was the winner of the first Wesleyan University Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1993. He also has spent time at Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Oxford.

In addition to his focus on economics, Prof. Adelstein was admitted to the Connecticut Bar in 1978. He received his Ph.D. and J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania, an M.A.A. from Wesleyan, and an M.A.T. from Harvard University. He spent his undergraduate years at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, graduating in 1968 and catching on the varsity baseball team.

Giulio Gallarotti • Faculty Advisor
Giulio served his fifth season as a co-Faculty Advisor to the Wesleyan baseball team. His presence with the team on its annual spring trip to Arizona is a key component of the integration of academics and athletics at the Wesleyan. He is a Professor of Government and a Tutor in the College of Social Studies. He has been a visiting professor at the University of Rome, and has published numerous books and articles.

Giulio received his B.A. from Hunter College, and his PhD from Columbia University. A standout intercollegiate tennis player, he played tournament tennis in the northeastern United States.

A Spring Trip Tradition

A Wesleyan baseball tradition is the team’s annual spring trip in March. Thanks to a two-week break from school, the Cardinals get the opportunity to play 15 games over 17 days without concern for missing any classes or academic work.

Wesleyan baseball was an innovator in making treks to warmer climates, starting with Jack Blott and Norm Daniels as the first northern coaches to take their teams on spring-break trips. In 1939, the Cardinals took their first trip to Washington, D.C. and Richmond, Va. Soon after, Wesleyan started going to the Miami, Fla. area, a tradition that continued until 2003.

The present-day trip features a focus on going out west. Since 2004, the Cardinals have gone to California and Arizona, with the current squad spending most of its time in Arizona, including playing many games on the spring training fields of Major League teams.

Key elements of the trip include the shaping of the team on both the physical and mental level, in order to be prepared for the conference play. The team not only gets tested in games against some of the best Division III teams in the nation, but meshes together through diligent practice and focus on the mind-set essential for success in baseball.

There are many highlights of the trip every year in addition to the thrill of competition. Over the years, Wesleyan baseball has had alumni games on its spring trip, been hosted by numerous families, and experienced the region, including attending spring training and college baseball games, as well as having team functions and trips to the ocean and surrounding areas.

The 1994 College World Series Team

One of Wesleyan baseball’s proudest achievements was its runner-up appearance in the 1994 NCAA Division III World Series and school-best final national ranking of No. 2 in the nation. For its success, the team was inducted into the Wesleyan Athletics Hall of Fame in November of 2009.

The whole experience would never have occurred but for a timely rule change by the NESCAC in 1993 that allowed schools to send their athletic teams to NCAA tournament play. The 1994 Cardinals took the opportunity and ran with it, all the way to Battle Creek, Michigan and a finals match-up with eventual champion Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Following a 24-6 regular season, which included the Cardinals’ fourth of six straight Little Three titles and the top rank in New England, Wesleyan hosted the New England Regionals at Palmer Field in Middletown. Led by New England Coach of the Year Peter Kostacoupolous and All-American hurler Craig Brewer ’95, the Cardinals swept through UMass Dartmouth and powerful Southern Maine twice in earning its World Series berth.

In Battle Creek, the winning continued. In topping the College of Wooster (Ohio) and Carthage (Wisc.), the Cardinals used a familiar formula for success: great pitching, error-free defense and clutch hitting. After Wesleyan fell short against Wisconsin-Oshkosh in the winner’s bracket final, Brewer collected his second World Series victory in beating UC-San Diego, earning Wesleyan another shot at Oshkosh. In Wesleyan’s final ballgame of an amazing season, Oshkosh freshman Jarrod Washburn (and future major league all-star) spread out nine hits in leading his squad to a 6-2 win that closed out the national title.

Despite falling one step short of the ultimate prize, the Cardinals posted a 30-8 record and a season to remember.

Wesleyan Baseball Awards

2014 Wesleyan University Baseball
Wesleyan’s first varsity baseball game took place at Yale on September 30, 1865, where the Cardinals lost 39-13. Wesleyan played one or two games a year sporadically from 1865 through 1887. In 1888, Wesleyan played an eight-game season, going 5-3. From that point on, Wesleyan played a consistent schedule of games each year with the exception of 1917. Wesleyan’s combined cumulative record for all seasons is 1284-1244-36.

Norm Daniels was Wesleyan’s baseball coach for 33 seasons and is in the ABCA Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame.
Wesleyan University is a coeducational, private university of the liberal arts and sciences. Serving 2,900 undergraduates and 200 full-time graduate students, Wesleyan is located in Middletown, Conn., alongside the Connecticut River midway between Hartford and New Haven.

Wesleyan offers a challenging academic environment that promotes independent thought and action. The intellectual atmosphere encourages students to think critically, to express their thoughts clearly, and to value the ideas and opinions of others.

Wesleyan offers majors in 44 fields, and a student-faculty ratio of 9:1. Students hail from all 50 states and more than 45 foreign countries.

Wesleyan Admission

Successful applicants to Wesleyan will have demonstrated outstanding academic performance, intellectual curiosity, and involvement in their school and community. Wesleyan accepts the Common Application. SAT and ACT scores are optional, starting in 2014-15.

Application Deadlines:
Early Decision I: November 15
Early Decision II: January 1
Regular Decision: January 1

Mission Statement

Wesleyan University is dedicated to providing an education in the liberal arts that is characterized by boldness, rigor, and practical idealism. At Wesleyan, distinguished scholar-teachers work closely with students, taking advantage of fluidity among disciplines to explore the world with a variety of tools. The university seeks to build a diverse, energetic community of students, faculty, and staff who think critically and creatively and who value independence of mind and generosity of spirit.

Wesleyan’s approach to education is at once highly individualistic and academically rigorous. The University does not require that freshmen take certain prescribed courses. Rather, students develop their own unique programs of study, programs that reflect each student’s own interests and are created with the help and encouragement of Wesleyan faculty.

Wesleyan has described a set of guiding principles that define its approach to liberal education. These principles are summed up in ten essential capabilities that the faculty believe every undergraduate should possess when he or she graduates from Wesleyan. The University also maintains a set of general education expectations in the arts and humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences.

TEN CAPAbILITIES

Writing
The ability to write coherently and effectively. This skill implies the ability to reflect on the writing process and to choose a style, tone, and method of argumentation appropriate to the intended audience.

Speaking
The ability to speak clearly and effectively. This skill involves the ability to articulate and advocate for ideas, to listen, to express in words the nature and import of artistic works, and to participate effectively in public forums, choosing the level of discourse appropriate to the occasion.

Interpretation
The ability to understand, evaluate, and contextualize meaningful forms, including written texts, objects, practices, performances, and sites. This includes (but is not limited to) qualitative responses to subjects, whether in language or in a non-verbal artistic or scientific medium.

Quantitative Reasoning
The ability to understand and use numerical ideas and methods to describe and analyze quantifiable properties of the world. Quantitative reasoning involves skills such as making reliable measurements, using statistical reasoning, modeling empirical data, formulating mathematical descriptions and theories, and using mathematical techniques to explain data and predict outcomes.

Logical Reasoning
The ability to make, recognize, and assess logical arguments. This skill involves extracting or extending knowledge on the basis of existing knowledge through deductive inference and inductive reasoning.

Designing, Creating, and Realizing
The ability to design, create, and build. This skill might be demonstrated through scientific experimentation to realize a research endeavor, a theater or dance production, or creation of works such as a painting, a film, or a musical composition.

Ethical Reasoning
The ability to reflect on moral issues in the abstract and in historical narratives within particular traditions. Ethical reasoning is the ability to identify, assess, and develop ethical arguments from a variety of ethical positions.

Intercultural Literacy
The ability to understand diverse cultural formations in relation to their wider historical and social contexts and environments. Intercultural literacy also implies the ability to understand and respect another point of view. Study of a language not one’s own, contemporary or classical, is central to this skill. The study of a language embedded in a different cultural context, whether in North America or abroad, may also contribute to this ability.

Information Literacy
The ability to locate, evaluate, and effectively use various sources of information for a specific purpose. Information literacy implies the ability to judge the relevance and reliability of information sources as well as to present a line of investigation in an appropriate format.

Effective Citizenship
The ability to analyze and develop informed opinions on the political and social life of one’s local community, one’s country, and the global community, and to engage in constructive action if appropriate. As with Intercultural Literacy, study abroad or in a different cultural context within North America may contribute to a firm grasp of this ability.
ATHLETICS AT WESLEYAN

Athletics at Wesleyan are recognized as a contributing factor in the overall education of the student. The presentation of a diversified program is in harmony with an academic philosophy designed to offer each student a variety of options for a meaningful liberal arts education.

Wesleyan University athletic competition has a long and rich tradition dating back to the student-sponsored Agalian Baseball Club formed in 1865. In June 1974, Wesleyan graduated its first class of women since 1912, and the athletic program has grown accordingly, now featuring 29 varsity sports.

Wesleyan has had 27 athletes named to the CoSida Academic All-America team since its inception in 1972, and has sent teams to the NCAA tournament in nine team sports. Highlights include a second-place finish in the 1994 NCAA Division III World Series by the baseball team and Final Four appearances by the men’s lacrosse team in 2006 and 2007. Individual athletes in swimming and diving, track and field, tennis and wrestling have also had national success, including national championships to their credit.

Wesleyan athletes have also made their mark outside of intercollegiate competition, most notably Amby Burfoot ’68, who won the Boston Marathon as a senior at Wesleyan, and Bill Belichick ’75, head coach of the New England Patriots, who led his team to three Super Bowl titles in four years. Eric Mangini ’94, his former assistant with the Patriots, was the head coach of the New York Jets and the Cleveland Browns. Former baseball player Jed Hoyer ’96 is currently the general manager of the Chicago Cubs. Three Wesleyan women have won Division III national championships: Jenna Flateman ’05 in outdoor track, Holly Sorenson ’95 in swimming and Karen Borza ’84 in outdoor track. Kathy Keeler ’78 helped the United States win a gold medal in rowing at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles as part of the women’s open eight. In addition, Bill Rodgers ’70 won numerous Boston and New York Marathons, Jeff Wilner ’94 played in the NFL for the Green Bay Packers and New England Patriots, and Amos Magee ’93 played MLS soccer.

THE LITTLE THREE

The fierce Little Three rivalry between Wesleyan, Williams and Amherst is believed to be America’s oldest, continuous intercollegiate athletic conference without a membership change. Little Three championships are contested in 26 sports throughout the academic year.

The three schools first formally banded together in 1899 as the Triangular League. In 1905, the Williams Athletic Council voted to consider the football games with Amherst and Wesleyan as championship contests. When Wesleyan and Amherst re-established competition in 1910, the present rivalry was underway. Since then, it has continued virtually unbroken and is considered a focal point of the season for the three teams.

THE NESCAC

Founded in 1971, the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC), a group of eleven highly selective liberal arts colleges and universities, share a similar philosophy for intercollegiate athletics. The conference was created out of a concern for the direction of intercollegiate athletic programs, and remains committed to maintaining athletics as an integral part of a liberal education.

NESCAC student-athletes are not only prominent for their academic accomplishments, but have been incredibly successful on the field. NESCAC teams have won 105 national team championships while 223 women and 110 men have won individual national titles.

Members of the NESCAC are Amherst, Bates, Bowdoin, Colby, Connecticut, Hamilton, Middlebury, Trinity and Williams College, and Tufts and Wesleyan University.
“Notice how the library faces the gym across Andrus Field like the mind over against the body, or how the observatory on Foss Hill, where astronomers view the stars, is balanced by North and South colleges, where deans and presidents observe more mundane phenomena like the behavior of students or the stock market.”
