MEN AND WOMEN CROSS COUNTRY

TERRY L. ALDRICH: Terry, a six-year veteran, led the Panther women to first in Vt., third in New England and second in the East in their division last year. The 1968 graduate of St. Lawrence University was an outstanding scholar-athlete and co-captain of track, ski and soccer teams at the New York school. He was a member of both the National Nordic Team and Olympic biathlon training squads and competed in the 1970-71 World Championships. Aldrich came here from the University of New Hampshire. In addition to cross-country, he coaches skiing and serves as assistant track coach. His women's ski team was second in the AIAW Nationals and the men's squad was fifth last year in the NCAA’s.

PROSPECTS

The women's squad suffered some key losses, but has several solid competitors returning. Major losses are Karin VonBerg, Middlebury's finest distance runner of all time, Anne Leggett, and Beth Paxson and Chrissy Lewis, who are both taking the year off to train for the upcoming World Championships in Nordic skiing.

Returning veterans are Keli and Tara McMenamy, Jamie Maerder, Jane Ogden, and Sue Long providing the nucleus of what could be a strong team. With any support from incoming freshmen, the Panthers, Vt. State Champions and third in New England last year, could once again be one of the top contenders in their division.

The men's team, which returns intact, should be considerably stronger than last year's team. With the addition of some promising freshmen, the Panthers could challenge some of the traditional NESCAC powers.

Leading the returning veterans is sophomore Mike Graham, last year's top runner, and Tom Van deWater, winner of the Vt. State 1,500 meter title two years ago before he went on leave. Others are Chip Audett, who recently finished his first marathon in under three hours; Mac Moore, a strong 5,000 meter competitor in spring track, and Eric Menck, one of last year's top runners. Senior Dave Mayfield and captain Brett Hulsey should also contribute to the team score.
